The Intelligencer. Although comparatively few roads are the country, yet the public feeling in favor of increased railroad facilities has not materially abated. Over in Washington and Greene counties, in Pennsylvania, they are warmly agitating a narrow gauge road between Washington and Waynesburg, and with every prospect of final success. Out in the interior of West Virginia the agitation in favor of a road from Grafton to Weston, via Buckhannon, still goes on. Coming nearer home, we have seen that the panic has not been able to kill off the Wheeling & Lake Erie road, but that on the contrary its still a live project and gradulty tak. it is still a live project and gradually taking practical shape. Whether our own unfortunate P., W. & Ky. road has permanently collapsed, or whether it is only temporarily under a cloud, remains to be seen, but it is not an unreasonable supposition to assume that it will yet be completed either by public or private enterprise. Capitalists are not so much afraid of new roads in the thickly settled parts of the country, where business already exists, and where there is a large traveling population to pass to and fro over the line, as in the far West, where these elements of presperity are lacking. So many western roads are now in default for interest capitalists will be slow. If I were to consult my private feelings and business relations merely, both inclination and interest would impel me to dealine the profered honor; but there can considerations of greater weight than these—the people of our State are suffering from the effects of unwise legislation, and, Judging from the past, they have well grounded fears that present oppressions may continue indefinitely. They are roads are now in default for interest capitalists will be slow. supposition to assume that it will yet be population to pass to and fro over the line, as in the far West, where these elements of prosperity are lacking. So many west-crn roads are now in default for interest on their bonds that capitalists will be slow to lend any aid to new enterprises. In discussing this question of new roads the New York Nation dwells upon the wonterful history of railroad building in this country within the last law years. Speak country within the last few years. Speaking of the amazing growth of the railway system it remarks that it requires some study of the figures to enable us to realize how all-absorbing the mania for railroad investment in the last six years really was. It was a simple craze. Under the stimulus of the land grant system, it swept through the country like a first-class epidemic, and is piece of news which no other lying man description is made and says that his candidacy this time is "stood that you are recognized by the "President," and on the same day he replied as follows to the respectful request to of a committee headed by Governor Mc-Enery for a hearing: "Your visit with to New York city and carried home a try like a first-class epidemic, and is piece of news which no other lying man detection.

Mason, Mo., Sept. 28.—Senator Schurz Mason, and, sept. 25.—Senator Schulz to day addressed a mass meeting here on State and National politics, and in the course of his speech made the following remarks on the correspondence between Marshal Packard and General Emory in

I notice that General Emory, with commendable spirit, repels the idea that United States troops could be used for political purposes. No doubt he describes the sentiments of honest soldiers correctly when he says such an attempt would be resented by them with indigrace. would be resented by them with indignation. For this I honor him, and should tion. For this I honor him, and should be the last man to cast any sinr upon the honorable spirit and good faith of the true soldier; but I submit that Gen. Emory's protestation does not meet the case. He says in his letter to Marshal Packard that does see how United States troops can be used for political purposes. Just there is the trouble. I venture to say that Marshal Packard, in his capacity as party manager, does see many things which Gen. Emory cannot see, just because the latter is an honest soldier and not a party manager. Campaign managers of the Packard stamp are apt to see many things which the honest soldier may find it difficult to appreciate. We remember the use United States troops were put to in the Kellogg usurpation in 1872. For weeks they had to stand guard over the State House while a State Government and Legislature were cut in Kansas roads in their best condition ever pretended to earn was about $3,40,000,00 or less than 5 per cent on their bonded indebtedness. Nor indeed did they ever earn that amount, or anything which approached to it. The claim was that in a business which averaged but $3,800 per cent of the receipts were no less than 40 per cent of the amount. Kansas, like many other of the Western States, is poor and sparsely set, tied. To it railroad system will contribute but very sparingly even for its population. It is probably aske to say that the cost of operating and maintaining the Kansas railroad system will consume for years to come 75 per cent of its gross receipts. The problem will then be were the took of operating and maintaining the Kansas railroad system will consume for years to come 75 per cent of its gross receipts.
